A FRESH APPROACH

What does an Agile approach to advanced training look like?

- It is iterative
- Delivered in small slices with validation along the way
- It is collaborative, with small teams working together to continuously improve
- It is focused on delivering the highest value first, inspecting and adapting along the way

Our A-CSPO program is firmly grounded in these Agile principles. Rather than a “big batch” delivery of content, we break the training up into small slices of content with practice in between.

Learn alongside, and work with, other A-CSPO qualified Product Owners from various industries in a cohort-style virtual class. Practice concepts from the class with your team each week and help each other level up.

GETTING STARTED

Let's establish a firm foundation.

The program starts with our most important set of foundational Product Owner concepts in an online course.

Have you covered these concepts in an Agile for All CSPO? No problem, you can test out of anything you've already mastered.

Are you relatively new to concepts like the Cynefin complexity model, finding the first 80/20 slice, advanced Story Splitting, and incremental Product Backlog refinement? We've got you covered.

Our online training modules have been successfully used by hundreds of Product Owners over several years. They're included in the A-CSPO program at no additional charge.

UPPING YOUR GAME

Here's what to expect.

We meet virtually in a six-week cohort-based program.

Far from some boring slides and a lecture, we have designed these virtual sessions to be every bit as interactive and engaging as our in-person, brain-friendly training approach that thousands of clients have come to know and love.

We integrate our Training from the Back of the Room approach to virtual learning to help you learn new concepts in a way that really sticks. Best of all, the virtual sessions are just a kick-off for the week.

Each session ends with an invitation to practice the new concepts with your team or organization, and the next session always starts with a review of your experience during the week.

Think of each week as a learning Sprint, planned during the virtual session, executed during the week, reviewed at the beginning of the next one.

ADVANCED CSPO®

This course is not for everyone. It is for people serious about upping their game around great Product Ownership. It requires a commitment to be present and practice before and during the program. The cohort participants help each other get better and they develop a strong connection and a lasting network of like-minded Product thinkers. For this reason, we have an application process to ensure the program is right for you.

BY THE END OF THE A-CSPO PROGRAM YOU WILL BE ABLE TO:

- Define Value for your organization
 - Effectively collaborate with multiple stakeholder groups
 - Deeply understand the problems and opportunities for existing and potential customers
 - Quickly validate new product and feature ideas
 - Effectively create and communicate strategy
 - Take an Agile approach to roadmaps and release plans
 - Refine your Product Backlog like a pro
